Woman's Suffrage Association.

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Vermont Woman's Suffrage Association was held in the M. E. church, Rochester, beginning Tuesday evening, June 25. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Julia A. Pierce, vice-president for Windsor county, presided. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Homer Hildreth. Rev. Frank E. Adams and the president of the local W. C. T. U., Mrs. Laura Kezer, spoke words of welcome. Rev. Geo. L. Story made response and also delivered an address, in the course of which he dwelt upon the fact of the superior educational opportunities now open to women. He also alluded to the willingness of many editors to admit articles on the subject of woman's suffrage into their columns.

Wednesday was occupied with routine business, interspersed with papers on various phases of the Woman's Suffrage movement. Miss Daisy Bell Miles read her essay on "Woman's Work," which was presented at the graduating exercises of the High school, and which appeared to no disadvantage in the re-reading. Mrs. Sarah M. Goodrich spoke of the wrongs inflicted upon women in haunts of iniquity in our cities, and especially in the Chinese quarters of San Francisco.

Miss Eliza S. Eaton pleaded for equality in suffrage in view of the equal right and privileges now enjoyed by the sexes in many other respects. Mrs. John S. Nichols, while recognizing the ultimate success of the movement, did not apprehend any such great moral upheaval in consequence of it as some predicted.

In the evening Miss Blanche Dunham read an original poem, which very skillfully embodied the most cogent reasons for woman's suffrage.

Prof. W. L. Burdick of Lawrence, Kansas, delivered an address which was listened to with much interest. He portrayed with great vividness the courage, devotion, patriotism and endurance of woman. He spoke of the success of the movement in Colorado, having been a citizen of that state when the right of suffrage was accorded to women.

He was followed by Hon. Henry B. Blackwell of Boston, who characterized our present form of government as an aristocracy of sex. He presented with much force the thought that the great wrong which have recently taken place would have been impossible if the right of suffrage had been extended to women.

A large and appreciative audience was present. The music was efficiently conducted by Rev. L. B. Yerkes. Miss Viola Yerkes presided at the organ.

King-Parsons Wedding.

On Thursday, at Glenwood Villa, the summer home of Dr. Charles Wesley Emerson, president of the Emerson College of Oratory, Boston, occurred the very unique wedding of Miss Julia Thompson King of Boston, formerly of Denver, Col., and Charles Chase Parsons of Brookline, Mass.

The wedding took place under the large maple trees, on the bank of the brook, and after a luncheon, together with the hundreds of Chinese lanterns which were artistically hung in the trees and festooned through the grounds, made it a novel and beautiful sight to behold.

The bride, gowning in white satin, en train, with a sweeping lace veil, carrying a bouquet of white forget-me-nots, standing under a huge bell made of wild flowers, was a picture never to be forgotten.

The hundreds of guests standing on the lawn could hear distinctly every word the minister, the Rev. J. J. Lewis, uttered, and the occasion was made more impressive by the prayers, and after the service by the groom, and Dr. Charles Wesley Emerson. Between each word could be heard the roar of the brook, which seemed to symbolize that two hearts, united as one, were to go on and on, like the brook, forever, through the journey of life.

After congratulations were extended to the bride and groom, elaborate refreshments were served from the porches, which were beautifully decorated with wreaths of evergreen, from which Chinese lanterns were suspended.

The presents were magnificent, consisting of cut glass, silver, gold, diamonds, books, lamps, pictures, Mexican drawn work, Renaissance lace center pieces, dolls, etc.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Augusta J. King of Denver, Col., formerly of Bethel, Conn., and granddaughter of the late Wm. E. King of Watertown, Conn. The groom is a wealthy wool merchant of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Parsons, accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Emerson and Miss Blalock, will sail for Europe July 6.
